WINEMAKER'S NOTES

Chardonnay and Viognier are very good blending partners. In this blend, the two grapes play well together, each making up for the other in some very important areas. Viognier makes a very aromatic, fruity wine, but can become flabby without a strong acid profile—Chardonnay provides this, bringing the blend together. These two grapes together produce a wine that works on all levels, and pairs with a wide variety of foods in many different situations.
